Somninetix Pty (Ltd) was founded in 2010. It has been a parts supplier and consultant to Transnet (SoE). The company has also been consulting to various national engineering and fabrication companies including Cargotec a multinational Finnish company.

Somninetix has provided various services to Cargotec including project management on local assembly and commissioning of cranes. It complies 100% to South African Black economic empowerment standards (BEE). There has also been trade between U.K companies and Somninetix for used port equipment.

The Director is Aman Kumkaran who holds an MBA from Regent Business School. Aman also has extensive technical and electrical experience on Container handling equipment and has been in the container handling industry for over seventeen years. He has been trained extensively on Straddle carriers and RTG's and is an expert on this equipment.

He was instrumental in setting up the entire service department for Kalmar in South Africa. He has been involved in the project management of over 150 Straddle carriers and 70 RTG's for Transnet and Namport.

He has extensive knowledge on Supplier Development implementation for SoE's.

We source the original manufacturer of the product (as most OEM's do not manufacture, they just assemble), we then negotiate with the manufacturer a bulk purchase price of the product. We are then able to supply the customer not only with a good price when they require the goods, but also a rapid delivery time. We supply a vast range of products under this branch of our services.

Our manufacturing capability offer us flexibility to tailor make solutions to client's needs. We also manufacture and over engineer several l components that are fitted to these port machines, allowing us to offer the customer an alternative to the (normally) expensive OEM option.

We can also manufacture to order any parts with a 1m x 1m turning size, so should the customer require a bespoke part, we are also able to offer this as a valuable "bolt on" service.
